Blending & Recycling Glossary of Terms

Batch: A blend or a repetition of a specific process and proportion of the same ingredients.

Blend: Ingredients (s) processed to a specific proportion to make an item, as defined by an individual Process Specification Sheet.

Campaign: From the start of time-period of activities on behalf of a customer to a conclusion. Campaigns may involve one singular product only, multiple products, multiple product lots, or multiple products. Campaigns start and run according to a campaign plan.

Components: Raw or Intermediate Material elements of a blend or recipe.

Major: The primary component of greatest mass in a blend or batch.

Minors: Secondary component (s) of less mass than the primary component.

Hold: A designed and purposeful stoppage or interruption of continuous workflow or product movement.

QA Hold: Intermediate Materials are placed on hold when manufacturing processes are complete. CPS Quality Assurance reviews and assures that each Finished Goods meets specification. A QA Hold intermediate material cannot be processed or shipped.

Customer Hold: Customers elect to hold Finished Goods until released by authorized personnel and process after information processing or criteria are satisfaction.

Materials: The substances that convert into items.

Raw Materials: A feed substance for a conversion process, identified by SDS designation.

Tramp: Any substance not indicated on the SDS or as indicated on a Process Specification Sheet.

Beneficial Tramp: Any substance not indicated on the SDS or Qdoc-01 document that is identified by the customer as wanted, useful, and included in Finished goods.

Unwanted Tramp: Any substance not indicated on the SDS or Qdoc-01 document that is identified by the customer as unwanted, harmful, and or not permitted to be included into product and disposes in trash.

Returnable Tramp: Any substance not indicated on the SDS or Qdoc-01 document that is identified by the customer to be separated, isolated, and returned to or ships per direction of customer.
